Lesson 28: Shifting Word Order in the Sentence (1065-1098)

Guided Notes

You may wish to _____ repeating a word or a sentence pattern. You may consider that one pattern sounds better than another in a particular situation, or that it gives an idea more needed emphasis.

Putting an _____, now and then, ahead of the subject adds variety to your writing. It also creates a greater feeling of _____.

Another reason for departing from the usual subject-first word order is to give _____ to a particular idea.

The normal word order of an English sentence is-
Subject- _____ - Complement

If we put the _____ first, it would attract more attention.

Putting an adverb or an adverbial word group ahead of the subject should not be done too often because it is the _____ rather than the rule.

Lesson 29: Some Useful Adverb Clause Devices (1100-1138)

Guided Notes

You are familiar with adverb clauses that begin with “if” and answer the question, “On what condition?”

The _____ idea can also be expressed without using the clause signal _____ at all.

The adverb _____ can sometimes be used as an adverb clause signal in place of if, when, after, or as soon as.

Another unusual type of adverb clause begins with _____ . These words, similar in meaning to because, are useful in stating _____ and _____.

Another unusual type of adverb clause can sometimes be used very effectively in place of an _____ clause. They make each “although” clause more emphatic by beginning it with an _____ or an _____, always followed by the word as.

Lesson 30: Two Useful Adjective Clauses

A special type of adjective clause is useful when you wish to state a fact about only a _____ or a _____ or a larger group.

These adjective clauses begin with such words as _____ of _____, several of _____, _____ of which, and most of _____.

In this type of clause, be careful to use _____, and not _____, to refer to people.

In a similar type of adjective clause, a noun _____ the words _____; for example, the price of which, the result of which, the purpose of which.

Ordinarily, the relative pronoun _____ provides a smoother sentence than of which and requires fewer words.

Lesson 31: Noun Clause Devices Notes

A noun clause is one that is used as a _____.

Many noun clauses begin with the clause signal _____.

When putting a noun clause at the end of a sentence, the subject is sometimes changed to the word _____.

A noun clause is often used as an _____ after the words the fact.

The “the fact that...” construction sometimes proves useful in tightening up a loose _____ sentence.

When inserting an adverb clauses between two parts of the noun clause, it is important not to repeat the word _____.

Lesson 32: Three Effective Sentence Devices

1. The “no sooner...than” sentence device

In a “no sooner...than” sentence, we usually need a _____ verb such as _____, did, or had with the main verb.

2. The “not only..but also” device:

In this type of device, you sometimes may omit the word “also.”

3. “The more...the more” or “the more...the less”

This sentence device is useful to show that as one thing increases or decreases, something else _____ or _____.

Sometimes a comparative form ( ) of an adjective or an adverb is used in these arrangements.

Lesson 33: The Useful Noun-Participle Phrase

A noun-participle phrase consists of a noun followed by a present or past _____ that modifies this noun.

Because a noun-participle phrase has no grammatical connection with the rest of the sentence, it is often called an _____ phrase, absolute meaning _____.

A noun-participle phrase consists of a noun plus a present participle that modifies _____ noun- not a noun in the main statement.

In a noun-participle phrase, a past or present participle is _____ the phrase of the noun it modifies.

A noun-participle phrase is a rather mature construction used by experienced writers to combine _____.
